The compilation of the imprints of Lancaster County was undertaken in accordance with the work of the Pennsylvania Federation of Historical Societies. As the first printing press erected in Lancaster County was located at Ephrata in 1745, the collection of titles, covering a period of such length, must necessarily be large. These titles were gathered by a number of friends interested in showing the important position held by Lancaster County in the printing industry.

Outside of the collection made for the Lancaster County Historical Society from its library and all other available sources, the largest contribution came from the library of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. The next largest addition was from Frank Reid Diffenderffer, Litt.D., first vice-president of the Lancaster County Historical Society, who collected all of the titles contained in Supplement Number One, besides a large number for the main part of the bibliography. The titles of Supplement Number One, though printed in Lancaster, do not show a Lancaster imprint on the title page, which made it necessary to place them in a separate division.

Owing to a number of titles being found without a date a second Supplement was added. The collection, therefore, has been made as complete as possible, though there are many imprints which could not be reached and others which have gone out of existence.

To the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, Dr. F. R. Diffenderffer, the late Hon. W. U. Hensel, and Mr. A. K. Hostetter, is due much appreciation for their help, which has been of distinctive value in the execution of the present work. When searching for titles many people in the city and county extended privileges which helped materially to add to the length of the collection. To all who assisted in this manner belongs the grateful recognition of their courtesy.

Thus it was this generous aid and encouragement which made possible the success of the compilation of Lancaster County imprints.
